How INTLINGO managed to meet tight deadlines?

CASE	We were asked by a financial institution to deliver translation for 500-word daily bulletin at 09:30 am after receiving the source file at 08:00 am
CHALLENGE	The job involved time-sensitive content that needed to be delivered on time. To meet the client's expectation, we had to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Arrange sufficient linguists in advance for this early-morning task • Finish translation and editing in a short time without comprising quality • Quickly locate relevant references to ensure accuracy
SOLUTION	Our project team carefully prepared for the task the day before and set up the following arrangement to ensure a smooth process: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • A team of experienced translators and editors with a financial background to standby in the morning • Clear division of labour among our linguists to maximise efficiency • Use of our financial translation database that has over one million segments to save time researching
OUTCOME	The client was satisfied with the service quality and arrangement. Given our full commitment in achieving the goal, the project turned out to be a regular assignment, and a long-term cooperation was developed with the client.

CASE 2

How INTLINGO worked on several language pairs at the same time?

CASE	An investment bank requested us to provide localisation and desktop publishing services for its guidebook from English into other six languages
CHALLENGE	The project required different parties working in different time zones. The most challenging parts of the task were: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Deal with six language pairs at the same time, and our native speaking linguists and editors were from around the world • Overcome the language barriers for our desktop publishing specialists, the majority of whom are native Chinese speakers
SOLUTION	Our one-stop communication solution is designed to cope with the above challenges. Leveraging our strengths in the following areas, we managed to finish the project on time: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 24/7 language services coordinated by our project managers who worked on shift • An international network of reliable native-speaking linguists with expertise in investments and finance • Dedication to going extra miles beyond the typical working procedure by arranging for a final round of proofreading of the output by native linguists to ensure texts, graphs and charts were placed correctly
OUTCOME	The guidebook was localised into six languages by taking cultural preferences into account, and delivered to the client on time. The client was satisfied with our work
